

TROOPS FIGHT PARIS FLOOD

PARIS, Nov. 14.—A terrific storm early today met all the calculations of the weather experts and caused fear of a recurrence of the flood of last January. Troops were immediately ordered out to fight the waters of the river, and with a short time 5,000 men were at the scene of the danger. The water was being blocked with piles of stones and other material, and the troops were working hard to keep the water from rising.

TWO SHOT BY WILD BULLET

While everything may not be favorable to an investor in the market, it is equally true that over the history of speculation there has been more money made in the market than in any other business. The main inducement, however, is the opportunity to make money.

Based on their market experience, as admitted by themselves, the Mercers, people are bullish and the speculative spirit of the market is buoyant. The market is buoyant and the speculative spirit of the market is buoyant.

This Is an Editorial on Agitation

It Is Written at the Request of an Individual Who Is in a Constant State of Agitation, and Who Has Found That Agitation Pays

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Exchanges

One of our friends—a man who has agitated his enemies systematically, and who has done a great deal to stir up the right kind of agitation in this country, suggests that an editorial ought to be written on AGITATION, its values and its drawbacks.

You shall read this editorial here if you want to. But before you read this editorial, which is dull, why not write mentally your OWN editorial, make up your mind what you would say, if you had to write about agitation, and thus make your mind work.

You know, of course, that the commonest thing in the world—especially among those who are engaged in fooling the people—is to denounce the AGITATOR.

As soon as some respectability has called a man an "agitator," smug respectability feels that it has done its entire duty and has destroyed the man.

Now, what are the facts? What is a real agitator, what is agitation?

The agitator is as different from the well-fed, supine, nerveless man as the moving surface of the ocean is different from the slimy, green covering of a stagnant pool.

When a man denounces agitation, ask yourself what agitation means. And then ask yourself, "What is the contrary of agitation?"

Agitation is movement, strife, protest, LIFE.

And the opposite of agitation is stagnation and death.

You know that the agitation of the ocean is due to gravity, largely to the power of attraction of the moon. And you know that without the moon's attractive power the masses of the water in the ocean would be dead and stagnant, and earth rendered uninhabitable by it.

It is thanks to the agitating influence of the moon on the ocean's surface that we have a planet in which human beings can live.

What the moon with its drawing power does for the ocean, thought, new ideas, courage and determination do for the masses of the people. The ideas that agitate the people keep them in health, keep them moving and prevent mental stagnation.

The thought which sets the brains of men vibrating in response to a new suggestion is the power of agitation.

The man, the thinker, the leader, who sees a crowd, stagnant, helpless, hopeless and oppressed, and who starts rebellion there, is called an agitator. He ought also to be called a benefactor.

The founder of the Christian religion was above all things an agitator. He protested against every form of brutality. He protested against the stagnation of cruelty and abuse in which children and women had lived for many ages.

He protested against the injustice, the dishonesty, the commercial spirit that had even invaded the sacred temple. It was agitation of the truest kind when he drove out with scornful words and blows those that disgraced the temple.

When a man talks about agitation, ask him, "What would you have in PLACE of agitation?"

Would you have the people remain content—get nowhere?

Wasn't it agitation when Alexander led his crowds from little Macedonia throughout the whole of Persia?

Wasn't it agitation when a handful of men in France threw off the domination of a dead, rotten, stagnant monarchy and established the revolution and the republic?

Wasn't it agitation when the men in the United States determined to get free of England, to throw off the control of a body in which they could not vote? Wasn't it very useful agitation when they threw that tea overboard?

Is not everything in life the result of agitation if it is worth having?

The birth of a child, like the birth of a new idea, is simply agitation in the most violent form.

To agitate is to move. Agitation is life.

Be an agitator, and keep up agitation in your own brain especially.

Literary Treatment

BY WEX JONES

SUBSTANTIAL reading will give almost any student, who has some physics of their own, and who has read the little book on the subject of "The Agitation of the Ocean," a valuable document in his library.

Mr. Perkins's story begins as follows: "Suffering greatly from rheumatism, when in 1905 I could do nothing but lie in bed, I was told by a friend that I should try the sea. I had never before been to the ocean, so the salt air is highly beneficial."

"I moved down close to the water. In fact, so close that the high tide washed in over me during the night. I forgot all about rheumatism, and I could not sleep."

"I cured the cold by refusing to recognize it. After such a sea bath I was in the best of health. I was told by a friend that I should try the sea. I had never before been to the ocean, so the salt air is highly beneficial."

John R. McLean for United States Senator

He Knows the State in Which He Was Born and in Which He Has Always Been a Hard Worker. He Understands the National Government Machine, Foreign and Domestic Responsibilities. He Will Represent the State of Ohio in the Senate Ably.

It is announced that John R. McLean of Cincinnati is to be the next United States Senator from the State of Ohio.

The announcement will gratify those who believe that the Senate of the United States should be made up of competent, energetic, intelligent and honest men.

Ohio's Democratic Legislature could not select for Senator a man who has done more for Democratic victory than John R. McLean.

He has been a Democrat, loyal to the party when others allowed their interests or their pocketbooks to frighten them away.

McLean, with his newspapers, his personal, journalistic and financial influence, has backed up the Democratic Party consistently.

He is in every way a typical, high-class, able citizen.

He has worked hard all his life, and is working hard to-day. His work has been successful, for himself and for those associated with him. He has usually got the thing that he went to get.

Representing Ohio in the United States Senate, there is no question whatever that he would get for his constituents everything to which they are entitled and that he would consider them entitled to pretty nearly everything within the range of his vision.

John R. McLean has led an active, cosmopolitan life. He is thoroughly acquainted with Washington, with Government matters, big and little, State and national, domestic and foreign, for he has lived part of each year in Washington. There is no man who knows that city better than John R. McLean, and no man is better known there.

McLean's interests are the interests of those whom he would represent as a Senator. He is the owner of one of the biggest newspapers in Ohio. He understands the wishes of the Ohio constituency. He has been persistent and consistent in the fight which resulted in the victory of Harmon.

For the work he has done and because of his personal ability and record, he is entitled to the highest recognition that the State can give him.

McLean is in the prime of life and energy, fit for important public work. He is one who understands laws, law-makers and law-making.

John R. McLean understands thoroughly the entire law-making apparatus of Washington, its good and bad points, its strength and its weaknesses.

The interests of Ohio would be safe in his hands. They would be protected by a man as familiar with the needs of Ohio and the legislative machinery of Washington as with the details of his own private business.

The members of the Ohio Legislature elected in the recent landslide owe a great deal to John R. McLean, and should be glad of the opportunity to prove their gratitude.

They know that his interests are the same as all energetic, capable business men, and other citizens of Ohio.

They know that his great pride is in his State in which he has worked and with which he has been closely associated from boyhood. They know that his only hope and desire would be to prove worthy of the highest honor that the Legislature can confer.

John R. McLean deserves election to the United States Senate because of his personal ability, because of his services to the Democratic party, because of his special fitness for that office—and he should be elected.

Under the Elevated

By E. R. COLLINS

Oh, I love the Elevated, with its utter disregard Of our feelings, as it blots out conversation by the yard. There is sadness in its purpose. One must learn by signs to say What he wants to, or forget it—for it's on the job all day.

It is sad, pathetic, awful, when you pause to contemplate How its noise has blotted into and destroyed the plans of Fate. Gentle Reader follow closely till you've learned the facts full well And a few of the incidents brought against it, I will tell.

Blighted Love

A YOUTH and maid sat on the stairs And listened all but they had died. He turned to the agonies of Those gone before—to bed.

"Will you be mine?" he whispered As he stroked her icy hand In the moldram fashion Like they do it at the Grand.

"Leave it to me!" she answered. "I will be your wife, Steve!" But the Elevated interfered And all he heard was, "Leave!"

A copper paused to grin at him; "Hello!" Rubie tried to yell. He got thirty days for swearing— All the copper heard was, "Hell!"

Extravagance

A MAN with murder in his heart Met him he sought to slay. Beneath the tracks while overhead The train was on its way. He drew a bead with deadly care Upon the other one And shot him seven hundred times "Cause he couldn't hear the gun."

Fatal

A SALVATION Army Begleit Marched underneath the L. "Nearer My God to Thee" he blew And thought he did it well. The Elevated train came o'er And smothered out his play: And he blew and blew and blew and blew Till he blew himself away.
